Managing Partner, Exambela Consulting

David Feldman, Managing Partner of Exambela Consulting, has over 25 years of experience in consulting to private and public sector clients, primarily in the airport sector.

Representative clients include airports, airlines, government agencies, third party suppliers along with investors and financial institutions on assignments relating to strategy, marketing, organisation, executive leadership development, consortium facilitation and financial transaction support in the global airport sector.

He has worked for clients worldwide in Europe, Asia, North and South America.

Before founding Exambela Consulting based in Lausanne, Switzerland, David was a partner in the Travel and Transportation Group of Mercer Management Consulting (now Oliver Wyman Consulting) and leader of the firm's global airport practice. Earlier in his career, David worked at United Airlines' headquarters in Chicago for five years as Director of Domestic Planning along with various management positions in the airline's finance department as well as for TWA in revenue management.

David is a guest lecturer in airport strategic planning at ENAC (École Nationale de l'Aviation Civile) in Toulouse, France. In addition, he routinely makes presentations at ACI EUROPE and Global Airport Development events as well as publishing articles in Airport World magazine.

David received a BFA magna cum laude, from the University of Pennsylvania and an MBA in finance and marketing from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania.
